Fires damage plant, burn houses, boat shed, store

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Bay St. Louis-Henderson Point area experienced fires earlier this week damaging or destroying four structures.

Fire damaged a portion of an industrial plant's roof and boiler, burned two summer residences and a boat house, and gutted a furniture store.

ALCAN PLANT DAMAGED

A steam generating boiler's fuel valve apparently malfunctioned Monday afternoon causing the device to spray diesel on a portion of Alcan Cable Co.'s plant roof.

The fuel burned and scorched a portion of roof at the east end of the plant building located on Central Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

The Bay St. Louis Fire Department responded to the 2:35 p.m. report of the blaze.

Bay Fire Chief Andrew Lizana Wednesday stated, "Alcan personnel did a wonderful job of extinguishing the fire just before we arrived."

"All we had to do was cool down and wash off the roof. Alcan had the correct type of chemical fire extinguishers to eliminate the fire before it had a chance to do any extensive damage," Lizana explained.

Plant Manager Alan McCaslin said just after the fire, "A steam generating boiler apparently had a fuel control valve malfunction which caused the device to pump fuel up the smoke stack and on to the roof."

"The burning fuel generated a lot of smoke which made the fire look worse than it really was. Some coating burned off a small area of the metal roof," he noted.

"The boiler was severely damaged, but it only caused a temporary one-hour loss of production time," McCaslin said.

"It was mainly because of some smoke in the building that we shut the plant down," he added.

"We have a system of three boilers. The boiler which was damaged is a backup boiler," the plant manager stated.

McCaslin estimated the brief blaze caused under $10,000 damage to the plant.

Reporting events at the time of the fire, McCaslin stated, "A couple of us saw some smoke and the boiler with fire going up its stack."

"We shut the fuel off to the boilers and the fire was confined to the roof," McCaslin said.

"We're going to have to scrape the roof and respray the coating on it," he noted.

About 15 minutes after the fire portions of the boiler were glowing cherry red due to the intense heat of the fire.

McCaslin reported, "We had plans to put in a larger boiler anyway, so we're going to go ahead and replace this one as planned."

The plant manager explained the boilers generate steam for a system which vulcanizes polyethylene insulation to cable manufactured at the Bay St. Louis facility.

"Fire trucks were able to go through our newly constructed warehouse to reach the blaze. Fortunately the warehouse wasn't filled up and the truck was able to go through it," McCaslin said.

"This underlines the importance of our need of an emergency exit to our plant from Third Street," he stated.

Alcan has delayed plans for construction.

L&N laying new 'quiet' rail in Hancock County

By BRENT MACEY

"You won't hear that clackety, clackety, clack any more when the trains come through," L&N Railroad workmen on a southern rail gang said this week about a new type of track they are laying in Waveland.

The crew has been in the area for about one week.

Earl Keeton, production engineer from L&N's Mobile, Ala. district headquarters, said the men have laid approximately two miles of new rail starting at Nicholson Avenue in Waveland and moving west.

Joe Sellers, superintendent of L&N Railroad in Mobile, said the new rail is a series of old rail welded together in a factory in Nashville and shipped to the area.

The new rails come to the site in 1,443-foot sections and weight 132 pounds per yard, he said.

He compared this to the old type rail now being torn up. That rail is constructed of segments 39 feet long.

The old rail was connected together with six bolts at the end of every 39 feet, Sellers said.

"That's 12 bolts to hold every rail in place. We don't have to use that any more. Joints on these new sections are pre-welded and we weld each of the new sections together after they have been laid."

Sellers said the new 'solid' rail is quieter and also safer than the old type.

"Most of our failures usually occurred at the joints. With a solid rail you very rarely have any problems," he said.

Sellers said the new type rail was developed in the 1950's.

"We've been replacing the old rail since then," he said.

"The work was concentrated in all the heavy-population areas first for obvious reasons," he said.

Rural and swamp areas are the last areas where the new rail is being laid.

The crew just recently moved up from Gautier and Ocean Springs traveling in railroad cars which contain living quarters for the crew members.

The new rail had already been installed in the Ocean Springs to Bay St. Louis area," Sellers said.

Keeton said there are about 28 more miles of track to be laid before reaching the Louisiana border.

He said the crew will finish up this stretch in the Michoud industrial area of New Orleans.

Sellers said the cost for replacing track by the company's southern rail gang is estimated at $6,148,000 for this year.

That crew will also be working in Louisiana, Sellers said.

"We hope to finish up New Orleans by the beginning of next year."

Sellers said the Mobile area has been completed but work remains in other parts of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee. Florida has been completed, he said.

The crew works from 7 a.m. until noon, takes a one hour break at lunch and works until 4 p.m.

During that time, except during lunch, all rail traffic is stopped on the line, he said.

"We try to schedule the trains around the times when they are working... This has thrown the schedules off some. We can not run normally and do this work."

Keeton said vehicular traffic also is affected at intersections.

"We usually hold traffic up at an intersection for about an hour," he said.

WORKING ON THE RAILROAD—Workmen for the L&N Railroad southern rail gang convert the old type rail on the tracks in Waveland to a new 'solid' rail which is quieter and also safer. The new type rail does not have joints connected by bolts. The new rail comes in sections 1,443 feet long and is welded together to form one continuous rail. Workmen above are about one-half mile west of Waveland Avenue and are running a machine which removes the bolts in joints connecting the old rail sections. Following them are men on a machine which pulls the spikes. At far right, workers follow plugging holes where the spikes have been. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Investigation continues in execution slaying

By BRENT MACEY

Law enforcement officials are looking for a suspect currently believed to be the last person seen with Eugene Milton Svoboda, 29, found dead on the side of Hwy. 43 in Hancock County Monday morning.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said autopsy reports Monday revealed Svoboda died as the result of a gunshot wound to the head.

"We are speculating now that he was probably killed in Louisiana, but we don't know," he said.

Peterson said the investigation is being conducted through combined efforts of investigators from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Mississippi State Highway Patrol and the New Orleans Police Department.

"We are trying to pin down the victim's last activities including where he was and who he was seen with," the sheriff said.

He stated investigations at this point have lead law enforcement officials to residents at 529 Paterson Street, Apartment C in Algiers, La.

Peterson said he believes Svoboda lived there shortly before his death.

"We have the name of a person we believe was the last person Svoboda was seen with. We are currently looking for that person," he said.

He added, "The New Orleans Police Department has been very cooperative in the investigation."

Svoboda's body was discovered at the bottom of a grassy embankment off Hwy. 43 at approximately 7:30 a.m. by a state highway worker who contacted law enforcement officials.

The body, streaked with blood, was wrapped in a sheet, quilt and garbage bag and tied in a ball with extension cord and rope.

The victim's feet were also bound. Peterson estimated Svoboda was dead four or five days before discovery.

An autopsy of the body by Dr. John Rutherford, pathologist at Hancock General Hospital, revealed death to be the result of a gunshot wound sustained in the back of the head at the base of the skull.

Peterson said a small caliber bullet 'fragmented' upon impact and left no exit hole.

He estimated the gun to be either .22 or .25 caliber.

Bruises on the body were originally thought to indicate a severe beating before death.

However, the autopsy revealed the

WEEKEND HOMES BURN

A three-alarm blaze in Henderson Point area in southwest Harrison County destroyed two weekend residences and a boat shed Monday morning located on the north shore of Mallini Bayou near Third Avenue.

Fire Fighter Joe Bowen of the Henderson Point Volunteer Fire Department Monday afternoon said the fire was reported at 5 a.m. by a neighbor who lives across the bayou from the burned buildings.

The fire fighter said the neighbor reported flames "leaping" from one of the residences.

Bowen said the fire of an undetermined origin apparently started at a house owned by Nick Oliver of New Orleans and spread to an adjoining two-slip boat house and another house owned by S.W. Smith of Hattiesburg.

Both houses were supported by pilings some 10-feet tall and were unoccupied at the time of the blaze.

The fire fighter said a 20-foot fiberglass diesel powered boat and a wooden skiff were damaged as a result of the blaze.

"We arrived at about 5:15 a.m. and called the Pass Christian Fire Department. Their unit arrived at 5:30 a.m. to assist," Bowen reported.

The Bay fire department was also called by Pass Christian to help fight the blaze.

"Both houses were on fire when we arrived," Bowen said.

"The Oliver house was burning vigorously and a north wind had apparently spread the blaze to the Smith residence," he noted.

Bowen said the Oliver residence burned to the ground, but fire fighters were able to save the foundation of the Smith structure.

"The fire was so hot on the west wall of the Oliver home, it was like an inferno," Bowen stated.

FURNITURE STORE BURNS

State Fire Marshal Norman Cowart of Wiggins is investigating a fire which gutted Crosby Furniture Store on US-90 in Bay St. Louis late Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

Lizana reported, "At 10:21 p.m. Saturday we received a call from a Mr. Ruhr, who lives on a nearby street, reporting smoke rolling out of the eaves of the Crosby building."

"After arriving at the scene we saw how extensively the building was involved and felt an intense heat radiating from building, so we called all Hancock County units to assist," he said.

"Waveland, Diamondhead, Clermont Harbor, East Hancock and BaySide Park Fire Departments arrived along with Pass Christian's department. The National Space Technology Laboratories Fire Department stood by in Waveland during the fire," Lizana noted.

"We set up to make an initial attack, but the fire had been smoldering for a while and radiation and convection in the steel structure had heated everything flammable inside the building," he explained.

"We also had a problem with cyanide gas caused by burning foam rubber and vinyl plastic," Lizana added.

"The fire chief said the building was packed tight as a drum with merchandise which hampered his fire fighting efforts."

"We checked the roof and a large area was glowing cherry red and I could see steel beams twisting and bending. The entire structure seemed to be involved," he noted.

"It was getting dangerous so, I called all my men off the roof. Since we couldn't fight the fire from the inside we had to fight it from the outside with 2.5-inch nozzle hoses," the chief said.

"Fires like this are dangerous and hard to extinguish," he added.

Eyewitnesses said at one point the entire building appeared to burst into flames and burned vigorously for about five minutes.

Lizana said water was sprayed on the neighboring City-County Library to keep that building from igniting.

"We had so many fire fighters there that we were finally beginning to extinguish it," Lizana noted.

The fire chief said the blaze was brought under control at 2:40 a.m. Sunday, but fire fighters stayed at the building half night extinguishing smoldering merchandise in the store.

Lizana said the fire appeared to have started near the rear of the building on the west side and estimates the fire had been smoldering for some one to four hours before fire fighters arrived.

"There were no signs of breaking and entering," Lizana added.

"We've called in the state fire marshal as a customary procedure," the fire chief said.

Fire Fighters Billy Fields Jr. of the Bay department and Kenneth Fayard Jr. of Waveland were both treated at Hancock General Hospital for smoke inhalation.

NEED FOR TREATMENT

A 1977 study by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, formerly HEW, showed orthodontic problems to some degree affected 89 percent of American children 12 to 17 years of age. Of that 89 percent, 29 percent were classified as severe cases in which treatment is considered either highly desirable or mandatory. Also, orthodontic care is needed in the treatment of some cleft palate cases. Victims of accidents involving the head and face often require orthodontic treatment.

The Cinderella basketball team of the southeastern conference has to be the Ole Miss Rebels.

Very few people felt the Rebels would be around for the semi-finals much less come out as champions.

We ran across some LSU Tiger supporters over the weekend still in shock over being eliminated so early in the tournament.

It will be interesting as to how far the Rebels will go in the NCAA tournament, but they can say we were there and the only way they could have been invited was by taking the championship tournament.

The Tigers already captured a berth in the NCAA tournament and should stand a good chance.

We wish both teams well, and are hoping both will be good representatives in the cadillac of basketball tournaments.

We know it is early for spring, but it is not too far away.

Had a chat with Billy Rhodes Monday while his crew was shaping up the McDonald Field for Little League play.

Rhodes said tryouts will be this Saturday for Little League players.

It will not be long before the umpires will be saying 'Play Ball.'

Jim Henrie told us Monday that Pete Fountain's Half-Fast Walkers are all ready for the gala St. Patrick's Parade in Waveland Saturday.

Henrie is a member of Fountain's marching group and reports a large number of the members will be in Waveland for the parade.

Fountain's Half-Fast Walkers is a very good addition to Waveland Civic Association's Annual Parade of the Green and we welcome all of his merry makers.

We hope everyone will go to Waveland Saturday and see the O'Bourgeois', O'Ladner's, O'Longo's, O'Trapani's, O'Kidd's, and O', O', O', O',.....

Just a reminder on the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's 'Morning Coffee' at the Sirloin Stockade, Waveland, tomorrow morning at 7:15 a.m.

The speaker is Phil Langston, new administrator at Hancock General. Hope to see you there.

We had a severe rash of forest fires in January and now it seems structure fires are on the increase.

We have to do our best to try and be extra careful and eliminate fire hazards.

SPECIAL REPORT:

Agriculture Hearings

The Senate Agriculture Committee has launched a three and a half week series of hearings aimed at laying the groundwork for writing the 1981 farm bill.

A total of 18 days of hearings were scheduled through March 25, with dozens of witnesses including farmers and farm wives, consumer organizations and Administration officials such as the Secretary of Agriculture, John Block, testifying before our committee.

As you might expect, a wide range of opinions are being voiced by farm-oriented, consumer and food industry groups and their spokesmen about what should be included in the 1981 farm program.

Since the 1977 farm act, an omnibus bill covering practically every major agricultural program, expires this fall, it is our duty and responsibility to enact new farm legislation this session.

Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse Helms of North Carolina has called on me to chair several of these important hearings, in particular those dealing with cotton, rice and soybeans, three of our major crops in Mississippi and the Mid-South.

In fact, several Mississippians and other spokesmen from our neighboring states were among those scheduled to testify before the Agriculture Committee.

Later this spring, we plan to conduct hearings down in our part of the country so our farmers can give us their views firsthand.

I am concerned that Congress hear from those who must live and work under the laws that are adopted there in Washington.

As chairman of the production, marketing and price stabilization subcommittee, I will have a great deal of work and responsibility this year in helping formulate a comprehensive farm program. Fourteen of the major commodities and programs administered by the ASCS come under the jurisdiction of our subcommittee.

The full committee, during our series of hearings, will discuss authorization levels for agricultural research, export promotion and nutrition assistance, in addition to the commodity crops and such related issues as loan rates and target prices.

Our job will not be easy. The President and Secretary of Agriculture have suggested that substantial cutbacks be made in many of our agricultural programs. These administration proposals are part of the President's recent economic message.

Although we know the general outline of his budget cuts, we do not yet have the specific recommendations by the Secretary of Agriculture for USDA's budget for the 1982 fiscal year.

It will be our task in Congress to analyze these budget requests, determine if they are fair — fair to our farmers and the agricultural economy which is so important to our national interests — and translate our deliberations into legislation covering a multitude of farm programs for the next four years.

The American farmer is the best friend the American Consumer has when it comes to producing food and fiber at a reasonable price.

One American farmer, for example, can produce as much on the average as seven collectivist farmers in the Soviet Union.

We spend a smaller percentage of our income dollar for food than any other major industrial society in the Western world.

Farm exports are a critical factor in maintaining our balance of payments in world trade. Last year, farm exports totaled nearly $40 billion, and this year they are expected to reach from $43 billion to $45 billion.

A sound farm program is essential to our economy, particularly in Mississippi, where upwards of 40 percent of our annual state economic activity depends on agriculture and related industry.

Congress is aware of the importance of the American farmer, and I am confident we will not fall short in meeting the challenge: to help maintain a strong farm program.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

Inflation is eating us all alive and you advocate more spending for advertising—which I consider the main culprit in spiraling prices. Why don't you tell the truth? We are paying too much.

Dear WAPM: I'm sorry about your plight, but as you well know, you have lots of company.

There are quite a few theories on the causes of inflation, and while yours might have limited merit under very special circumstances, it is simply, as a general rule, not true.

As a matter of fact, advertising, quite to the contrary, may be one of the few allies you have in the struggle with inflation.

By carefully shopping the ads in your local area you can find special sales and promotions featuring your needs, thus stretching your shrinking dollars.

Your short term benefit will be immediate savings, but by patronizing the shops that advertise you further aid them in their quest to sell at lower prices.

With more sales volume they will be enabled to buy in volume and the savings thus generated in the future will be shared with you through lower prices.

Furthermore, the increased volume of sales will allow the managers to maintain a lower margin of profit per item with lower markups. This will benefit you in lower prices in the future.

If you want to blame someone for inflation, you might select businesses that do not advertise and attempt to increase volume, or workers who demand more pay without a subsequent increase in responsibility, productivity or performance. For these factors are the real causes of spiraling inflation.

Some pick out the service-type industries, like advertising, in assessing the blame based on the theory that they produce no real goods.

But the test of this accusation must be if the services they provide aid in the production—for example, health care that may increase workers' output, and advertising that helps to sell merchandise, increase production requirements, thus lowering per unit cost.

Any wage or salary increase should be a recognition of increased ability to perform in a certain job, be it teaching or making automobiles.

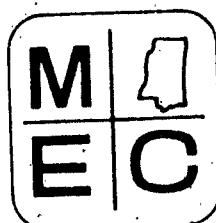

Time in grade, alone, is no reason for pay hikes—only productivity.

To be sure there are quite a few non-economic reasons for increased production costs, but they should be recognized as such.

But back to your premise, I feel you have been grossly misled, and are thus attacking what could be one of your few friends in the fight against inflation.

I hope you will re-evaluate your position and in the future refuse to accept irrational conclusions. Read the ads and save some money.

NEWS

The Mississippi Economic Council has commended the state House of Representatives for recognizing the benefits of a mandatory county unit system for road management, while lawmakers wrestled with the problem of funding the state's troubled highway system.

"Rising costs and lower-than-projected revenues have seriously curtailed construction and maintenance programs," said MEC Chairman Lewis F. Mallory, Jr., a Starkville bank executive.

"These curtailments have forced lawmakers to reexamine every dollar of public funds spent on highways, roads, and streets to determine whether funds are being spent as efficiently and economically as possible," he said.

Recognizing the need for efficiency in the state's highway program, House members have passed an amendment calling for the adoption of a county unit system for road management—a move which, said Mallory, "would mean more efficient use of tax dollars while improving the administration and maintenance of county road programs."

Mallory explained that a few counties in the state have adopted the unit system; and county officials report that, using all measurements of road program management, the unit system has shown to be the most cost-efficient in the state.

Counties—with these few exceptions—operate their road systems on the district or "beat" system. This results in five road crews, five sets of equipment, and five methods of maintaining and constructing roads in each county.

The unit system combines these five road departments in each county into one road system for administration and maintenance under a county road manager answerable to the board of supervisors.

"MEC has long advocated that mandatory management of county roads under the unit system would mean more efficient use of tax dollars while improving the administration and maintenance of county road programs," Mallory said.

"The state and its counties can ill afford to continue the beat system which fails to produce a maximum return on the tax dollar."

The amendment passed by the House was inserted into a comprehensive highway funding bill. The bill, however, failed to win final approval in the House.

State official reports local business news

Ed Pittman, Secretary of State, this week in Jackson released information regarding local business activity for February.

He reported there were 44 documents filed from Hancock County giving notice that a creditor has a security interest in property of the debtor. During this same period, two new business corporations were chartered.

"Dianne D. Smith and James Leonard Odum of Hancock County received their Notary Public Commissions during February," Pittman said.

"One out-of-state defendant was served through my office with court process for lawsuits which originated in Hancock County," he noted.

"Some 34 parcels of land in Hancock County were sold by the state through the Land Division of the Secretary of State," Pittman stated.

STATE DIRECTORY

The newest edition of the Official State Telephone Directory for Mississippi State Government recently has been published by the Publications Division of the Secretary of State's Office.

"It contains more than 7,500 names of State employees and agencies in the capitol area and the yellow pages classifying offices has been greatly enlarged," Pittman added.

Insurance firm offers theft prevention tips

Automobiles are being stolen in the United States at an unprecedented rate. But the notion that most cars are taken by highly sophisticated criminals has been discounted by one insurance executive.

Amir Spears, manager for consumer affairs at Aetna Life & Casualty, said it is still rare to find a skilled professional who can overcome anti-theft equipment or break into a locked car in a matter of seconds.

"All of us are fascinated by that idea. But the truth is that even organized theft rings often hire teen-agers or other amateurs to do the actual stealing," Spears commented.

"The typical car thief is unskilled. He's lazy and not too bright. He looks for the easiest mark — and a lot of innocent people make it very easy."

Quoting data from the FBI and the National Automobile Theft Bureau, Spears noted that nearly one in five stolen vehicles had been left unlocked with keys in the ignition; about one in five larcenies involve theft of auto accessories like tape decks, CB radios and expensive options that are easy prey for anyone who can break a car window; over half of all thefts occur in residential areas, often of vehicles left outside a garage.

Spears recommended four common sense steps that should be routine for all automobile owners:

—Never leave your car without closing the windows, locking all doors and taking the keys. Turn the front wheels sharply left or right so the locking mechanism in the steering wheel engages and it will be hard for thieves to tow.

—Take packages and valuables with you, or lock them in the trunk and keep them out of sight. Consider investing in anti-theft devices rather than expensive accessories that will make your car a target.

—Park in well-lighted areas with frequent passersby. If you park in a commercial lot or garage, leave only the ignition key with the attendant — and make sure that your name and other identifying information is not available.

—Make sure you can identify your car and prove ownership should a theft occur. (Dismantling, repainting and camouflage operations make this much harder than most persons think.) Drop business cards down door channels into the floor interior. Hide return address labels or etch your initials in hard-to-find spots.

Spears warned that the best techniques are worthless if not followed consistently. "We're all human and there's always the tendency to slide back into habits that save us a couple of seconds or seem more convenient," he said.

"That's why anti-theft campaigns sponsored by civic or business groups are always useful. They remind people of the precautions they probably already know they should be taking."

A folder incorporating Spears' suggestions about auto theft prevention and including ideas for organizing cooperative efforts between community and law enforcement officials is available from Aetna Life & Casualty, Anti-Theft Program DA02, 151 Farmington Ave., Hartford, Conn. 06156.

Legion offering scholarship

Clement R. Bontemps, American Legion Post No. 139 of Bay St. Louis is once again offering its scholarship programs.

"One $500 scholarship is being offered at University of Southern Mississippi, and two $500 scholarships at Pearl River Junior College—one for academic endeavors, and one for vocational training," a group spokesman says.

Scholarship application blanks are available from Eddie Murtagh at 103 Necaise Ave. in Bay St. Louis and John D. Rutherford Jr. at 424 Main St., Bay St. Louis.

"Applications for the USM scholarship must be received at the University of Southern Mississippi campus no later than March 31.

Bay board balks at official's third grade housing strategy

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees balked at a student housing recommendation by Superintendent of Education J.D. McCullough.

McCullough's recommendation, offered at a regular board meeting Monday night at Bay Senior High School, calls for housing all students in the same buildings as last year—leaving third grade students at the senior high for another year.

The board voted last year to move the students from dilapidated portable classrooms at North Bay Elementary School to the senior high and sold the trailers.

Trustee Virginia Gex, former board president, stated, "When the third grade was moved to the high school it was understood this was a temporary solution to an emergency situation."

"I'd like to see the administration come up with a plan to put these kids back into a mainstream environment," Gex noted.

"The administrators should come up with a recommendation to put these students back where they belong," she said.

McCullough reported, "The board asked me to make a recommendation for housing students for another year. After discussion with administrators we felt it would be in the best interest to house the students in the same buildings as last year."

"We have made a lot of considerations regarding housing and improving these facilities," the superintendent said.

"We feel we've had a lot of success with this program and our best move is to leave it the same way," he recommended.

"I recommend we consider this because the administration will begin to schedule classes for another year," McCullough said.

"I might say this. We are considering maybe adding art to the curriculum at the high school if a poll of the students shows we should do so," he reported.

"We've had several students express their interest in this course to administrators, but we have to find a classroom if we want this course," McCullough added.

"We also have considered adding a class for advanced students. A poll shows a need, but we've got to have classrooms," the superintendent said.

Trustee James Ginn acknowledged, "I think we asked that a recommendation come forth from the administration by the February or March board meeting."

"If we wait until April 22, would that give administrators enough time to plan for the school year beginning in mid-August?" he asked.

McCullough replied, "That would give us about a month."

Trustee Maurice Singleton asked, "Would that give you a problem with your scheduling?"

The superintendent replied, "The administrators spoke strongly to the fact that we hadn't approved a housing plan last month."

Ginn, who is also a member of the Educational Needs Assessment Committee which will give its report at the end of next month, stated, "After listening to the committee I think they may have some recommendations."

"But suppose there are no changes asked. If we decide the administration proposal was better it wouldn't make any difference if we approve a plan now or in May," Ginn speculated.

Bay Junior High School Principal W.J. Cameron told the board he asked for two months to organize a housing plan.

Ginn stated the board had three alternatives regarding the third grade, which included:

—Buying new trailers;

—Moving the ninth grade to the senior high and sixth grade to the junior high;

—Leaving all classes in the present locations.

Gex said, "I want the administrators to tell us if they have another choice rather than leaving the situation as it is."

Singleton noted, "Our only other choice is to buy another temporary building and we should not do that."

Trustee Betty Diboll stated, "When we had a meeting about moving the third grade, people listened, but they understood this to be temporary action."

"I'm afraid if we leave the third grade where it is, we will have a lot of unhappy citizens," she speculated.

"Parents were up-in-arms at that meeting and I had to go to several other meetings after that one to explain the third grade move was only temporary," Diboll reported.

After the board approved a motion based on Gex's recommendation Board President Walter Turcotte told McCullough, "You and the administrators come up with a plan to get those kids back where they're supposed to be."

Regarding teachers in the school system, Diboll reported, "I've been on this board for two years and I have four more years to go."

"I've been listening, looking and learning and I'm not happy with what I see," she noted.

"I will be watching and I want to see more teachers be more active in promoting science fairs and departmental projects," Diboll said.

"There are so many things we could participate in if we just did it," she added.

"We have some teachers who do extra work, but we also have some who beat the kids out of the door at the end of a school day," Diboll reported.

"We also need a better physical education program," she noted.

Diboll listed pep rallies, fund raising projects and publicity as activities discouraged by administrators in athletic events.

"I'd like to see these things done and they can be accomplished without costing the district one cent," Diboll said.

Turcotte noted, "After any of our athletic events you will only see about 10 sentences in the paper."

"You'll always see something in the paper about another team because they will bring a news release to them to publish," he reported.

Diboll requested, "I'd like a copy of what I've just said sent to each administrator, teacher and student."

Ginn stated, "We will address a lot of this in the needs committee report."

Singleton noted that prospective senior high football players are not allowed on the team if they miss spring training due to summer jobs.

"It's wrong to punish these kids. As parents we encourage them to get jobs to learn responsibility, but then they are punished by not being allowed to play football," Singleton stated.

"The board needs to discuss this with the athletic director," he added.

Diboll suggested, "We should look at the total athletic program."

"We ask why we don't have team spirit and the answer is it is always someone else's fault. We have the talent, but our boys come away discouraged," Diboll said.

Singleton noted, "The junior high will have a winning season and when the students reach the senior high, that team is on the bottom."

"Something is wrong and it has to be corrected," he added.

Andrews Wilkerson, representative of Bay St. Louis Local-American Federation of Teachers, and retired junior high teacher, stated just after the meeting, "I wish the board members were equally concerned with academic achievement as they are with athletics."

In other business at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the superintendent's office, the board:

—Elected Turcotte president and Diboll secretary;

—Authorized payment to Dillman Roofing, Inc. of Bay St. Louis for repair work on the senior high gymnasium roof costing $1,173 with an add-on $115 charge for decking replacement; —Approved a special meeting with the needs committee at 7:30 p.m. April 27;

—Approved a 1981-1982 school year calendar presented by McCullough. Classes for the new year are slated to begin Aug. 18;

—Approved McCullough's recommendations for rehiring teachers for the 1981-1982 school year after meeting in executive session for one hour and 10 minutes. All teachers who sought re-employment were hired;

—Approved McCullough's recommendation to purchase two new school busses to replace one bus and to serve a new bus route.

discoloration was due to the length of time elapsed after death, Peterson said.

"He was not beaten," the Sheriff added.

"We have ruled out the possibility that Svoboda owned any car or motorcycle," Peterson said.

Svoboda's parents in Islip, N.Y. told authorities that they believed their son may have been in possession of a blue Pontiac with Connecticut license plates at the time of the shooting.

The body is at Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis.

WHY YOU NEED MORTGAGE PROTECTION

Is it important to you that your home be free and clear of a mortgage at your death?

Statistics show there's a far greater chance you'll die before your mortgage runs out than there is of your house being destroyed by fire or other disaster (for which you most likely already have adequate insurance).

What kind of financial picture would your family face without your income?

Providing mortgage protection coverage is surprisingly low in cost, regardless of what your mortgage balance happens to be.

Get the facts. Ask me about our Mortgage Life Protection plans.

MIRI rep guarantees Gulfview roofing work

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County School Board Saturday received a written "personal guarantee" on a sprayed foam roof installed on buildings at Gulfview Elementary School in Lakeshore.

John C. English, official of Marine Industrial Residential Insulators, Inc. of Long Beach which installed the roofing material, sent a letter to the board pledging his personal guarantee of his company's work.

The board previously accepted five-year guarantees from MIRI and roofing material manufacturer Anchor Coatings, Inc. of Waukesha, Wis. English states that due to a lawsuit MIRI is engaged in with Anchor Coatings, a personal guarantee would insure his company's intent to stand behind the Gulfview work.

Regarding 16th Section property in the Waveland city limits encompassing Buccaneer State park, the board conveyed Section 16-9-14 to the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

Terry Randolph, 16th Section land manager explained, "We don't get any money out of this land and we have to convey this property to the municipal district in accordance with state law."

Waveland annexed the property several years ago.

The land manager reported approximately half of the 640-acre section extends into the Mississippi Sound.

Randolph added the municipal district must now accept the transference of property to complete the legal transaction.

Coincidentally, the county school district is now attempting to reclaim several hundred acres of land in northwest Hancock County which was conveyed to the Picayune Municipal Separate School District.

The land was conveyed in the 1950's when children from northwest Hancock County area attended Picayune schools.

However, in the early 1960's the National Space Technology Laboratories' acoustic buffer zone moved all inhabitants out of that area of the county.

The board also approved recommendations by administrators to rehire certified personnel at Charles B. Murphy, Gulfview and Hancock North Central Elementary Schools, HNC Junior and Senior High Schools, and Silver Creek School.

However, as advised by Board Attorney Joseph Gex, two board members did not approve two teachers who are relatives.

Acting Board President Woodrow Ladner opposed hiring teacher Nadine Patten at HNC because she is a niece.

Board member George Ladner opposed hiring Ganell Roberts at Gulfview because she is a first cousin.

Gex said it was not necessary for George Ladner to oppose Roberts' hiring, but noted "it would be a good idea just to be safe."

In other business at the 9 a.m. meeting in the D.M. Russell Sr. Youth Court Center in Bay St. Louis, the board:

—Authorized a final $26,749 payment to McClelland Building Service, Inc. of Gulfport for completion of the HNC handicapped center construction work;

—Approved hiring Julia Cuevas as an HNC High School substitute teacher for the remaining school term;

—Approved hiring Cuevas and Charlotte Ladner as substitute HNC cafeteria workers for the remaining school term;

—Approved paying annual $10 membership dues to the Gulf Coast School Boards Association;

—Tabled bids from Quick and Grice, Inc. of Picayune totalling $8,000 and $6,975 and Blossman Gas Co. of Waveland totalling $4,375, both for propane fuel conversion kits for five school busses;

—Tabled advertising for bids to purchase and install a new intercom system at HNC Elementary;

—Heard a report from Randolph that he is considering recommending leasing all school-owned forest lands for agricultural use;

—Discussed plans for building a trophy case in the HNC gymnasium estimated to cost $2,500;

—Discussed a leak in the HNC gym roof;

—Discussed district office personnel maintaining the same hours at Courthouse employees;

—Discussed construction of additional classrooms at HNC;

—Discussed the need for newly purchased furniture in the HNC handicapped center;

—Discussed cleanliness inside HNC buildings;

—Discussed methods for dealing with children purposely not attending school.

CONFERRER—Some 30 property and casualty insurance agents in Mississippi were recognized at a conferment ceremony recently in Jackson upon completion of all requirements for the Certified Insurance Counselor designation. Among them was Linda Bonney of Bay St. Louis. The Certified Insurance Counselors Program stresses practical insurance knowledge and continuing education. It is sponsored nationally by the Society of CIC and locally by the Independent Insurance Agents of Mississippi.

Coast organization offers parenting class

Two parenting classes are scheduled this month at Gulf Coast Mental Health Center at 4514 Old Pass Road in Gulfport.

Ann Rivera will begin an eight week series on Systematic Training for Effective Parenting on March 17 from 5:30-7 p.m.

Jo Ellen Reid and Mary Ellen McMillin will lead a STEP group which will meet weekly on Friday mornings from 10-11:30 a.m. beginning March 20. This group also will meet for eight weeks.

The STEP Program is designed to help parents deal with raising children in today's complex and rapidly changing world," says center Public Information Specialist Joan Grantier.

"Parents in the STEP program learn to be kind but firm. They work on techniques to help their children develop responsibility for their own behavior," she notes.

"The goal of the program is for participants to create effective child-parent relationships which grow in an atmosphere of love and mutual trust," Grantier states.

To enroll call Grantier or John McNally at 863-1132.

The center is an agency of the United Way of Hancock County.

Only one taxpayer may claim dependent

Even though several persons may together contribute over half of a dependent's support, a dependent can be claimed as an exemption by only one taxpayer, the Internal Revenue Service says.

If no one person in a family contributes more than one-half of the cost of supporting an individual, the group should choose one of its members to claim the exemption.

However, that taxpayer must have contributed more than 10 percent of the total support and must meet all other dependency tests, according to the IRS.

The remaining contributors in the group must compete and sign Form 2120, "Multiple Support Declaration," stating that they will not claim the exemption that year. The forms are filed with the income tax return of the person claiming the exemption.

Additional information on dependency exemptions is contained in IRS Publication 501, "Exemptions." Taxpayers may use the order form in the tax package, or call the IRS Tax Forms—Information number listed in the local telephone directory to obtain this handy reference.

PLANT CONTRACT AWARDED

Mississippi's Fifth Congressional District Rep. Trent Lott recently reported in Washington D.C. that a $96.7 million contract was awarded by the U.S. Army to Mason Chamberlain, Inc. of Picayune to acquire production equipment for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant in Hancock County. "I'm delighted with the continuing progress of this facility and excited about the role it will play in our national defense when completed," Lott stated. The plant will be under the 'operational control' of the Army Armament Material Readiness Command.

LOCAL ARTHRITIS LECTURE

The Mississippi Chapter Arthritis Foundation will conduct the first in a series of patient education lectures on arthritis Saturday at 10 a.m. in the American Legion Home on Blue Meadow Road, in Bay St. Louis, Dr. Beverly Myers, MD, rheumatologist of Gulfport, will present the program on Osteoarthritis, consisting of a slide presentation and discussion. These patient education programs are open to the public, but arthritis patients and members of their families are particularly urged to attend. For further information call 467-1444.

Group opposes regional plan

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon the president of Concerned Citizens of Hancock County reported the organization recently voted to oppose Bay St. Louis joining the Mississippi Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority.

Concerned Citizens is the first local group stating a formal position regarding the regional authority.

Geraldine Lang, president of the Bay St. Louis based organization, stated at the press conference in the Webb Community Center on Third Street, "The regional program is disoriented and has no good organization at all."

"The regional program isn't ready to be presented to the public. We have no knowledge of how much this wastewater plan will cost our citizens," she said.

"The regional plan would impose a hardship on low income senior citizens," Lang noted.

"This will seriously effect senior citizens on fixed incomes who can't afford additional bills," she added.

Rocks edge Tigers 1-0, in pitchers duel

ANDREW HAAS—11 strike outs - 1 walk - 3 hits - 0 runs.

By Randy Ponder
Andrew Haas delivered a clutch RBI single in the top of the eighth inning, breaking a scoreless tie, to give St. Stanislaus a 1-0 decision over the Bay High Tigers Saturday night.

The win earned the Rocks, 3-0 on the season, first place in the Bay High baseball tournament played at Tiger park in Bay St. Louis.

Haas' heroics were staged when Sean Logan reached first on an error and advanced to second base as Bruce Cabell placed a perfect bunt single up the first base line. Logan then moved to third on catcher Joe Gex's long sacrifice fly to deep centerfield and later scored the game's only run when Haas connected with his game winning hit.

Pitching was the dominate factor in the contest as winning hurler Andrew Haas fanned 11 Tigers and walked only 1 while scattering 3 hits.

Scotty Adam pitched well enough to win most ball games, but his Tiger teammates could not get him any runs. Adam struckout 8 batsmen and allowed 4 base on balls and 3 hits.

Both teams let early scoring opportunities go by the boards in a game that took an extra inning to decide.

Joe Gex put the Rocks in scoring position in the first inning when he doubled with two outs. Bay High fast baller Scotty Adam fanned the next batter to end the threat.

Bay High catcher Mark Breland singled in the second stanza and advanced to second base on Bobby Richardson's sacrifice bunt but was stranded when the following batter struck out to end the inning.

Another Tiger threat was ended when the Rocks turned a second-short-first double play in the third.

In the sixth, Bay High had runners on first and second with two outs. Scotty Adam drew a base on balls and David Strong hit a single to left. A pop up ended the inning.

Each team had runners in scoring position in the seventh but could not push a run across.

Brian Logan relieved Haas in the bottom of the eighth and set the Tigers down in order to earn a save.

In the consolation game, Hancock North Central had to come from behind to beat Pass Christian 7-5.

The Hawks scored seven times in the fourth to overtake a two run Pass advantage.

Neal Ladner was the winning pitcher with relief help from John Henry.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS

Bay High clobbered Hancock North Central, 7-1, behind the excellent pitching of David Strong Friday night.

Strong went the distance, fanning 11 Hawk batters while walking only 4.

Mark Breland had two hits for the Tigers and one run batted in. Dennis Manieri collected two RBIs.

Bay Little League player tryouts slated Saturday

The Bay St. Louis Little League will conduct tryouts for its 1981 player draft from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at McDonald Park, Dunbar Avenue and DeMottuzin Street.

Player agent Billy Rhodes said prospective players between ages nine through twelve not already on a team are encouraged to participate in the tryouts.

Players must bring a valid birth certificate to the tryouts, Rhodes said.

The 1981 season begins May 2.

Hancock boxers score four wins

By EDGAR PEREZ

Hancock Boxing Club members took four victories in a 19-bout event sponsored by the club Saturday evening at Hancock County Fairgrounds on Longfellow Road, Bay St. Louis.

The Bay-Kill-Waveland Boxing Club scored three wins on the card which also featured five exhibition matches.

And four boxers from the Pearlinton area, former members of the Slidell Police Athletic League Boxing Club and fighting unattached Saturday, took home winner's trophies.

The victorious Hancock Club fighters include John Favre, 10, who took a hard-fought, close decision in the 60-pound class from Brian Wheat of Ocean Springs, and Virgil Dahl, 15, in the 125-pound class.

Dahl's contest was stopped by the referee in the first round after Dahl downed opponent Daniel Bell of Gulfport twice.

Hancock's Jimmy Bourgeois, 12, bested Bobby Bagnaud of Ocean Springs in the 65 pound class.

Ninety pound Chris Reas of Hancock scored a revenge victory over state Golden Gloves hopeful John Poolson of BKW.

Poolson had bested Reas in a February match at the Disabled American Veterans Hall in Bay St. Louis.

Another BKW Golden Gloves state title contender, Todd Rooks, suffered defeat in Saturday's event at the hands of Charles Huddleston of Gulfport.

Rooks appeared to be the winner of the first two rounds, but was clearly trounced by the taller Huddleston who took advantage of his longer reach in the final stanza.

Rooks and Poolson will seek state Golden Gloves titles in their respective classes Friday and Saturday at Delta State University in Cleveland.

BKW winners Saturday include Wayne Karl, 12, who took 65-pound Kelly Lifer of Gulfport, and Chuck Karl, 10, also fighting in the 65-pound class, who bested Timmy Bourgeois of Hancock.

In the 120-pound class, Darrell Fayard, 15, of BKW defeated Ronald Favre of Hancock.

The Pearlinton winners include Cordell Parker, 12, who defeated Rusty Deroun of Biloxi, and Gary Long who beat Jeff Kennedy, 13, of Biloxi.

Brent Herman, 12, defeated Keith Switzer of Gulf Boxing Club in Saucier in the 75-pound class.

And heavyweight John Cannon, 18, of Pearlinton, scored an eight-count knockdown in his three-round decision over Phil Howard of Wiggins, also fighting unattached.

Results of other matches include Tony Bailey, 13, over Greg Gilbert, Biloxi, 106-pound class; Vance Seal, 15, of Long Beach who scored a third round two over Robert Mitchell of Hancock; and Joey Henert of Ocean Springs in a decisive victory over Vance Stringer, 15, of Hancock in 119-pound class.

Also in the 119-pound class, Joe Bates of Wiggins bested Hank Bleuchner of Biloxi; and

Cable network plans

NCAA tourney coverage

The Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, Ch. 3 on the Hancock Cable system, in conjunction with NCAA Productions, will telecast up to 25 games of the 1981 Division I basketball tournament, according to Chet Simmons, ESPN president.

ESPN's coverage would include all 16 first-round games and all eight regional semifinal contests; ESPN will telecast the national third-place game live from the Spectrum in Philadelphia, Monday, March 30.

"The number of telecasts we will do obviously depends upon the logistics involving game times and sites," Simmons said.

The NCAA will announce tournament parings and times on Sunday, March 8, ESPN will announce its final telecast plans shortly thereafter.

ESPN tentatively plans live telecasts of six of the first-round games, played Thursday, March 12, and Friday, March 13. Also on the tentative schedule are live telecasts of five of the regional semifinal games, played Thursday, March 19, and Friday, March 20.

Since many of the games will undoubtedly be played concurrently or will overlap due to time zone differences, the remainder of the contest would be presented on a brief delay.

NCAA Productions will televise key games of the tournament for the fifth straight year, and will provide its feed to ESPN.

An hour-long tournament preview show hosted by Bob Ley will air at 7 p.m. the evenings of March 11 and March 18. ESPN will also provide extensive coverage of the championships on Sports Center, its sports news show.

In addition, the network will present tape-delayed coverage of the Division II semifinals and finals, telecast March 21 and 22, and the Division III final, shown March 22.

Last season, ESPN telecast 22 games of the NCAA Division I tournament, including 13 first-round games, the regional semifinals and the third-place game.

GOLDEN GLOVES HOPEFUL—Todd Rooks, left, of the Bay-Kill-Waveland Boxing Club will represent South Mississippi in the senior 119-pound division of the Mississippi State Golden Gloves Tournament Friday and Saturday at Delta State University, Cleveland. Rooks took the regional Golden Gloves title with a finals decision over Kelcie Banks of Gulfport March 1 in Hattiesburg. Banks is a Junior Olympics winner and was favored in the Hattiesburg matches. Saturday night at the Hancock County Fairgrounds, Charles Huddleston of Gulfport scored a decision over Rooks in matches sponsored by the Hancock Boxing Club. State Golden Gloves winners this weekend will advance to a Mid-South Tournament at Jackson, Tenn. March 19-21 and winners there will go to the National Golden Gloves Tournament in Toledo, Ohio in April. (Staff photo by Edgar Perez)

Kelcie Banks of Gulfport defeated Ralph Tillman of Biloxi.

Bobby Terwilliger, 11, of Saylor Boxing Club, defeated Sam Schoonmaker of Hancock in a 90-pound event.

Exhibition matches in which the decisions were reached included Brent Carver, Hancock, and Rodney Fountain, Ocean Springs;

Carl Zana, Hancock, and Chris Whisenhunt, BKW; Keith Loftin, Hancock, and Eric Whisenhunt; Tom Lane, Hancock, and Eddie Bennett, Pearlinton; and David Bennett, Pearlinton, and Darren Elliot, Biloxi.

Dr. Hank Roberts of Biloxi served as ringside physician. Officials included Lois Whisenhunt of Waveland;

Jack Norwood of Hancock County, and Fred Goltz, referee, of Long Beach.

Rodney Deroun, Biloxi Boxing Club coach, served as ring announcer.

Harvey Mitchell of Washington Road, Bay St. Louis, is head coach of the sponsoring Hancock Boxing Club.

STATE TITLE SHOT—John Poolson, right, of Bay-Kill-Waveland Boxing Club, this weekend will have a shot at an intermediate 95-pound class state title at the Mississippi Golden Gloves Tournament Friday and Saturday at Delta State University in Cleveland. Poolson, who was unopposed in recent finals for the South Mississippi title in Hattiesburg, lost a decision Saturday at the Hancock County Fairgrounds to local arch rival Chris Reas, left, of the Hancock Boxing Club. Poolson had defeated Reas in a February match at the DAV Hall in Bay St. Louis. (Staff photo by Edgar Perez)

Duck stamp art contest nears

Only a few weeks remain to get entries into the state's Waterfowl Stamp Art Competition, according to the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

The contest, which is open only to Mississippi residents, is sponsored each year by the department to select the artwork to appear on the state's duck stamp that will be issued later in the year.

Both amateur and professional artists are permitted to submit entries which depict a living species of North American migratory ducks or geese common to Mississippi.

According to contest rules, the following species will not qualify for this year's contest, since they have appeared on recent stamps: wood ducks, mallards, green-winged teal, canvasbacks, pintails.

Anyone interested in entering the contest should request an official application form and a copy of the contest rules by writing the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation, State Waterfowl Stamp Art Contest, P. O. Box 451; Jackson, MS 39205.

The entry form must be filled out, signed and returned before artwork can be accepted for the contest.

The deadline for having all entries into the Department of Wildlife Conservation's Jackson office is 5 p.m., March 20, 1981.

Entries will be judged by a panel of three judges proficient in the fields of but not limited to ornithology, conservation, and/or art.

Entries will be judged on the basis of anatomical accuracy, artistic composition.

HNC's Ladner to coach at Phillips

By EDGAR PEREZ

Veteran Hancock North Central basketball coach Roland Ladner Wednesday said he experienced 'mixed emotions' in announcing he has been hired as head coach and athletic director at Phillips College in Gulfport.

Ladner said he is 'very happy about my situation at Phillips' but declined to discuss salary figures.

He noted his opportunities to attend coaching clinics and conventions will be considerably better than at HNC.

"I am very appreciative of my 23 years in Hancock County and feel deeply indebted to God and the people of Hancock County for the opportunity to coach there," said the veteran of 29 years of high school coaching.

"I encountered a situation here," Ladner said from Phillips campus Wednesday, "which I just couldn't turn down."

"I had committed myself to 25 years of work in a rural area at the beginning of my career and I have stayed 29 years," he added.

"I love Hancock County and in all probability I will continue to live in the county," the coach stated.

Ladner said he will be assisted by Bob Pitalo with the possibility of a third coaching post to be established.

"We expect to be working with the college administration in building a first class organization here with a fine basketball program," he said.

Phillips is planning to become a four year institution by the 1982-1983 academic year, Ladner pointed out.

The school currently offers a two-year associate degree and competed in basketball with junior colleges in Kentucky, Louisiana, Florida and Tennessee last year.

Ladner said the school is currently considering options on whether to continue in strictly junior college competition or to join the Little National Conference in which some opponents would be four year schools.

"We will open our season next year with a 14-team tournament in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum," Ladner explained.

He said he hopes eventually to play all home games in the Coliseum.

"Right now we are using the Mississippi City Gym on lease from the City of Gulfport and playing our home games in Gulfport High School Gym," Ladner added.

"I'm convinced we have a sound program both academically and athletically here at Phillips," Ladner feels.

Ladner completed 29 seasons of head coaching on the high school level this year.

During those seasons, he amassed 823 wins while losing only 255.

That record reportedly makes Ladner the winningest active high school basketball coach in America.

Throughout the history of high school basketball only two other individuals have amassed more victories. His 823 wins represent an average of over 28 victories per season.

Ladner has received extensive recognition from his peers, has served as a member of the board of directors for Mississippi

And in 1973, he was named the high school coach of the year by the National Association of High School Coaches.

His 1977 Hancock North Central team was the first high school team to be invited to play in the Louisiana Superdome.

He received the Houston Rocket Sportsmanship Trophy in the 32-team Houston Jaycee Holiday Classic in Houston, Tex. in 1973.

On March 25, 1980 Ladner was selected s the 1980-1981 boys basketball coach of the year by the Mississippi Association of Coaches board of directors.

He has been nominated and is under consideration by the National Athletic Coaches Association as national coach of the year.

"Ladner has proven his ability to lead young men to the highest levels of achievement, not only on the basketball court but also in the game of life," said Phillips' president John C. Miller.

"Phillips College is indeed proud to have him as the driving force and model in our quest for greatness," Miller added.

CREATIVE IDEAS IN WOOD

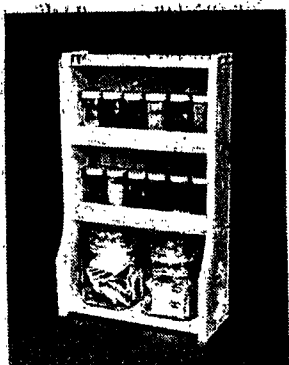

Spice racks come in all shapes and sizes, but most have one shortcoming: They hold only one size jar. The spice rack pictured here, holds the jars of basic seasonings too, plus large canisters to store coffee, tea, sugar or other items such as matches and coupons.

This rack can easily be converted to a pipe rack. Simply dry clamp two wood strips together and drill holes centered where the edges of the strips meet. Separate the two pieces and you'll have pipe separators with covers to hold each pipe. You'll probably want to glue felt in the covers to prevent marring the pipes. Of course, the lower shelf will hold several humidors.

Drilling holes on edges of pipe separators in form covers.

If you'd like to have the plans to make this spice or pipe rack, ask us for Idea No. 1833 and send $2 to Creative Ideas in Wood, c/o

this newspaper, 750 Center Drive, Vandalia, Ohio 45377.

Woodworkers' Forum

Question: How can I keep my clamps from marring the surface of my project during clamping?

Unless you have handscrew clamps with wooden jaws, you should use cauls (protective strips of wood) between your clamps and the stock to prevent marring. These cauls can be nothing more than small scrap pieces you have laying around in your shop.

Also, don't clamp the joints too tightly. Besides marring the wood, you'll squeeze out the glue resulting in weak joints.

We're glad to answer wood-working questions from readers. Write us at our Vandalia address and please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope to help facilitate a quick reply.

Gas corporation ups expenditures

United Energy Resources, Inc., recently announced 1981 capital expenditure programs totaling $463 million, compared with expenditures of $358 million during 1980.

"Capital expenditures for 1981 will augment the company's interstate and intrastate natural gas transmission systems and broaden the earnings base in its growing energy exploration, development and service operations," J. Hugh Roff Jr., United's chairman, president and chief executive officer said recently.

United Energy is the Houston-based parent company of United Gas Pipe Line Co., United Texas Transmission Co., Cotton Petroleum Corp., United Energy Services Co., PetroUnited, Inc., and other energy related companies.

United Gas' 1981 capital budget includes $230 million for interstate gas transmission system projects, up from $105 million in 1980.

"These capital expenditures in 1981 will include $77 million for additional investment in joint venture gas supply projects and $153 million for new onshore and offshore gas supply facilities, maintenance and system reinforcement," Roff explained.

United Texas' 1981 budget provides $48 million in capital expenditures for interstate gas transmission projects.

"This compares with $106 million spent by United Texas in 1980, when construction was completed on the company's 286-mile, 30-inch pipeline from Laredo to Katy, Tex.," the company president said.

"United Texas' 1981 expenditure include $23 million for construction of additional pipeline capacity, $11 million for new gas supply facilities, and $14 million for system maintenance and reinforcement," Roff reported. "Cotton Petroleum, United's oil and gas subsidiary, plans 1981 capital expenditures of $160 million for exploration, production and acreage acquisition. This compares with $131 million in 1980 capital expenditures," Roff stated.

"United Energy's 1981 capital budget also includes expenditures for its well servicing and contract drilling operations and liquids terminaling and marketing," he reports.

"United Energy Services' 1981 expenditures will be for maintenance and for purchase of a drilling rig and five new well servicing rigs," Roff noted.

"PetroUnited's 1981 spending will be for additions and modifications to its existing terminaling facilities at Bayport, Tex., and Sunshine, La.," he explained.

"Completion of the capital expenditures program as budgeted for 1981 and participation in future capital projects and new investments will depend upon a number of factors, including the issuance of governmental approvals and the availability and cost of financing at the time," Roff stated.

DIVIDEND INCREASE

The board of directors of United Energy Resources recently increased the quarterly dividend on the company's common stock 26 percent to 48 cents per share from 38 cents per share, with the new dividend payable April 1, to stockholders of record on March 2, 1981.

"United had 27,811,736 shares of common stock outstanding as of Jan. 31," Roff added.

CRIME SEMINAR—Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police Departments along with the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and members of the New Orleans Police Department Crime Prevention Unit recently staged two crime prevention seminars for merchants and citizens of Hancock County. Approximately 35 merchants attended a meeting in the Bay Senior High School Gymnasium designed to inform them of how to prepare and protect businesses from shoplifting, burglary and armed robbery. Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams said there was good attendance both nights. Participating in the seminar are, from left, Jim Adams of the NOPD Crime Prevention Unit, Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Sheriff's Department Investigators Delbert Seay and Alvin Ladner, Bay Police Department Investigator Matt Karl, and Jackson County Sheriff's Department Capt. V.L. Moore. Representatives from Honeywell Protection Service stand by their company's display in the background. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

In Mississippi

Oil, gas activity increases use of core, sample library

Last month the Reagan Administration lifted price controls on domestic crude oil, an action some officials believe will give an incentive for domestic oil exploration.

"In Mississippi evidence of this is already evident with increased activity at the core and sample library kept by the Bureau of Geology, Mississippi Department of Natural Resources, as petroleum geologists study cores and samples from wells long ago abandoned as being unproductive or dry to the depth drilled," a department spokesman notes.

"The core and sample is a unique collection of what lies below the surface in most every spot of Mississippi," the spokesman says. "It is housed in the Bureau of Geology Building on North West Street in Jackson, and there are hundreds of boxes and cartons, each coded and filed, available for study by petroleum geologists, independent oil operators, water well drillers, teachers and students and anyone else interested in knowing what kind of rock formations there are in some particular area of the state," the spokesman reports.

There are cores and samples from 70 of the state's 82 counties and from Ship Island. A core is a section of the rock formation encountered during a well drilling operation. A sample is ground-up matter (dirt, sand and rock) that results from drilling the well.

"The core and sample library was moved from the University of Mississippi to the West Street location in Jackson in 1960, and the building was financed in large part by major oil companies and independent producers operating in Mississippi," the spokesman says. "Edwin Luper is the section chief and could be called the 'core and sample librarian,'" the spokesman adds.

"Luper works closely with the State Oil and Gas Board. Every Friday he contacts that office to get a list of wells which have been permitted to be drilled. He then contacts the operator and requests samples or cores. More often than not, the driller has already made arrangements to ship a core or sample to the library," he explains.

Many states have laws that require the driller to file cores or samples, but in Mississippi the filing is voluntary.

Luper sees no particular need for a law in Mississippi.

"Virtually every operator cooperates with us, because they know that what one operator files today may be of significant benefit to them in six months," Luper states.

To the trained geologist, the cores and samples tell a fascinating story. By studying the fossils, the geologist can determine the age of the formations as well as the depositional environment.

The cores and samples also aid the geologist in determining the shape and location of a dome in which oil is likely to occur.

Sometimes, for various reasons, an operator requests that a core be kept confidential for a period of time. Luper and his staff apparently comply with these requests.

"Sometimes an operator thinks he may be on to something special, and he would rather keep what he has found in the confines of his company. Of course, we respect his wishes," Luper says.

"Use of the core and sample library has increased considerably since the energy shortage, and even more in the past month after decontrol of domestic crude prices," the spokesman reports.

"The core and sample collection at the Bureau of Geology is the largest in the state. There are some private firms that maintain a core collection, but these are for their clients' use," the spokesman says.

The Bureau of Geology collects cores and samples from four categories: oil and gas wells, water wells, test holes dug by the bureau for its own research and sanitary land fill investigations.

"Nearly 5,000 oil and gas samples are filed, 1,131 water well samples, 578 samples from bureau research projects, 90 from sanitary land fill investigation and 560 oil well cores," the spokesman lists.

"Luper and his staff are ready to offer assistance to anyone using the library, but most people who come in already know what they are looking for, and all the help they need is to be pointed in the right direction," the spokesman explains.

"As might be expected petroleum geologists are the biggest clients of the collection, but university professors and students can often be seen there as they work on research or teaching projects," the spokesman says.

"Storage space is a problem in the library, just as it is in a library with books or periodicals. The building housing the collection has been enlarged twice. For this reason not every oil and gas well drilled is represented," the spokesman notes.

Luper explains that one or two cores or samples from a field is sufficient for their needs.

The Bureau of Geology, formerly the Mississippi Geological Survey, is one of the oldest agencies in state government, created by an act of the legislature in 1850.

In 1979 the name was changed to the Bureau of Geology and it became part of the Mississippi Department of Natural Resources.

Alvin Bicker heads the agency with the title of state geologist.

Former Bay chief attends academy

Two University of Southern Mississippi Hattiesburg campus security officers recently graduated from a law enforcement training program of the Jackson based Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy. William Carbonette and Jud Murry, both veteran USM security officers, attended the week-long training session.

Carbonette is a former Bay St. Louis police chief.

"The course, the first of its kind exclusively for officers at educational institutions, dealt with many aspects of campus law enforcement including: disciplinary procedures, interrogation, report and records writing, authority, jurisdiction and the history of campus law enforcement," a university spokesman said recently.

Steve Henderson, assistant chief of USM Security, said all USM officers will be sent to the academy for the special training.

"The classes are limited to two officers per session from any one institution, but we intend to send our personnel to three additional courses during the year," he stated.

"The academy training is in addition to eight weeks of training which officers attend when we hire them and it gives the law enforcement officer the latest information and procedures to do a better job," Henderson noted.

UNO hosts art sale, exhibition

An exhibition and sale of original oriental art will be Friday, March 20, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the University Center at the University of New Orleans.

Approximately 800 pieces of art from Japan, China, India, Tibet and Thailand will be in the exhibit, which was arranged by Marson Ltd. of Baltimore, Md.

"The oldest prints date back to the 18th and 19th centuries and include Japanese woodcuts, Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts with master works by such artists as Hiorshige, Kuniyoshi and Kunisada," a university spokesman says. "Modern pieces consist of a large group of original woodcuts, etchings, lithographs, serigraphs and mezzotints created by contemporary artists such as Saito, Azuchi, Mori, Katsuda and Maki," the spokesman adds.

The exhibit-sale, which is open to the public, is being sponsored by the UNO Student Activities Board.

Pilgrimage scheduled in Diamondhead March 27

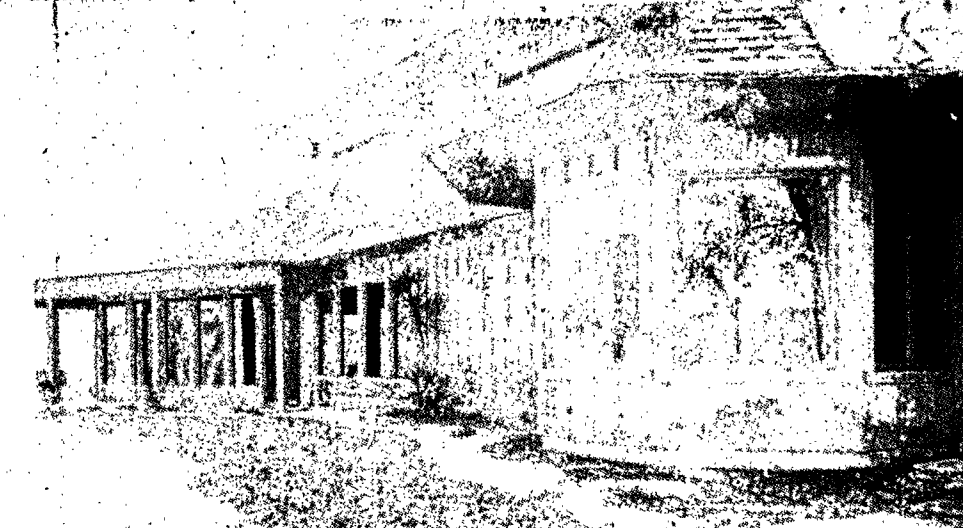

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs is sponsoring its 34th annual spring pilgrimage to homes selected in the Diamondhead area Friday, March 27, from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Visitors will have an opportunity to tour the interiors of the selected homes and gardens at that time. Homes selected for the occasion are those of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swartzendruber, 7582 Alakoko Dr.; Mr. and 77015 GOLF CLUB DRIVE—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Berlon Dennis is built of pine logs from Mena, Ark. The interior walls are pecky cypress. The house is furnished with turn of the century antiques, both English and American. Flo blue semi-porcelain is on display in a footed china cabinet. An extra course of logs was required for the lower level to accommodate a hall tree. The fire place mantle is oak and comes from an old home in Sun, La. The refrigerator in the kitchen is oak and has been converted from an old ice box. The wine cabinet in the bar area is also an old glass ice box. The Gambrell barn located next to the house serves as a two car garage with an efficiency above and is also log. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

7582 ALAKOKO DRIVE—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swartzendruber enjoys the view of Diamondhead's well manicured fairways and greens which blend into the natural beauty of the surrounding woodland. The unusual entry leads into an atrium extending through two levels with stairs down to guest quarters and up to the family living area. On the golf course side, sliding glass doors open from each room to a veranda on the first level and to a redwood deck on level two where the view is superb. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

838 MAUNA LANI PLACE—The theme for this home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cuccia is country living on the bayou. The back of this house, pictured above, opens to a lawn and double deck dock with boat ramp. Designed by Bernard J. Arronson, this home reflects the owners' taste in casual living. The many spacious rooms include the Great Room which serves as the focal point while connecting the bar, dining room and kitchen. The master suite features a spacious Grecian style bath with private garden. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

5517 GOLF CLUB DRIVE—This home of Mr. and Mrs. H.T. Montgomery, constructed with cypress and Alabama flagstone, features a sense of alriness with the golf course extending as a backyard. There are no constricting walls separating the expanse of the flagstone entrance, living room, cathedral ceiling family room-dining room and kitchen. The family room-dining room has a built in china cabinet and looks past a large stone fireplace for a panoramic view of the golf course. A well planned sewing room is another unique feature of this year old house. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

8312 MAUNA LANI PLACE—The home of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Johnston titled 'Fair Winds' on Rotten Bayou, features a nautical theme with ship lamps, sailing hardware, decks, and ship ladder leading to a Captain's Walk. The house is medium size, built for two with guest space for five and has low heating costs and maintenance. The owners chose a compact two-story plan using rough-hewn cedar walls. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Mrs. James D. Johnston, 8312 Mauna Lani Place; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cuccia, 838 Mauna Lani Place; Mr. and Mrs. Berlon Dennis, 77015 Golf Club Drive; Mr. and Mrs. H.T. Montgomery on 5517 Golf Club Drive; and Rotten Bayou Cemetery.

Diamondhead is one of 13 areas to be opened to the public for the pilgrimage scheduled March 20 thru 29. Other participating areas will include; Gulfport, March 20; Biloxi, March 21; Long Beach, March 22; Hancock County Welcome Center, NASA and tour of Port of Gulfport, March 23; Beauvoir-Jefferson Davis Shrine, March 24; Bay St. Louis and Waveland, March 25; Pass Christian and the 'Pride of Baltimore' one of the tall ships, March 26; Ocean Springs and Gulf Hills March 28; and Pascagoula and Gautier, March 29.

ROTTEN BAYOU CEMETERY—Full of historical background, this is essentially a family cemetery for the Fenton and Mills communities. The Diamondhead Garden Club established a Memorial Garden for anyone desiring to remember a loved one by planting a living memorial. The original 40 acre site was donated for community use before the Civil War by Felicite Moran Cuevas after her husband Frank was buried here. He was the son of Juan de Cuevas, a resident of Cat Island who gained fame as the 'Paul Revere of the Mississippi Gulf Coast' during the War of 1812. A celebration of Mass at the grave sites takes place each all Saints Day. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Area group to hear local psychologist

The Mississippi Association of Children with Learning Disabilities Hancock County Chapter will host at its upcoming meeting Dr. Catherine Lundy of Gulf Coast Mental Health Center in Gulfport, as its speaker.

The meeting will be at Scadiff's Wheel Inn Restaurant at 6:30 p.m. on US-90 in Bay St. Louis on Monday. Lundy is a psychologist and director of the mental health's Hancock County branch and associate coordinator of Children's Services for the Gulf Coast.

"Lundy's topic for this meeting is hyper-activity and early warning signs of children who could have problems in their school work. She is also a consultant for mental health programs in the Hancock County School District, says Marion Dailey, chapter president.

"Our speakers are experts in their professions and freely give their time and advice. We encourage all of our members and other interested persons to attend this meeting, especially anyone with a child who could have a learning problem," Dailey added.

"All members should call their children's teachers to invite them also. Teachers are an important part of this organization and should attend to learn more about problems they face teaching our children," Dailey said.

For more information about this meeting call Dailey at 255-9287.

Lipscomb, Smith reign over 48th annual OLG Ball

King and Queen Carnival XLVIII, 1981,
George Lipscomb and Martha Smith.

Our Lady of the Gulf Carnival Association staged its 48th annual Carnival Ball Friday, February 27 in Our Lady's Academy Gymnasium with Mr. George Lipscomb and Ms. Martha Smith reigning as king and queen.

The theme of the ball was "Carnival Disneyland". His Royal Majesty, King Carnival XLVIII, 1981, was introduced by Pete Chapman, master of ceremonies.

Mr. Lipscomb was attired in a formal white tuxedo. He greeted his Royal subjects with a silver jeweled scepter.

Mr. E.J. Marengo and Mrs. Sheryl Breland, King and Queen Carnival XLVII, 1980, were presented and promenade the ballroom floor in a farewell tribute.

The ladies of the royal court of Carnival XLVIII were introduced and escorted around the ballroom floor in a traditional march. They wore traditional white gowns. They carried satin carnival masks accented with sequins and plumes.

Members of the court included Mrs. Judy Lipscomb, escorted by Mr. Richard Smith; Mrs. Fran Trombley, escorted by Mr. Michael A. Gauthier; Mrs. Mary Harris, escorted by Mr. Michael Harris; Mrs. Rhonda Oliver, escorted by Mr. Charles Oliver; Mrs. Sally Lind, escorted by Mr. Arthur Jeanfreau; Mrs. Yvonne Sills, escorted by Mr. Billy Sills; Mrs. Sheryl Kenmore, escorted by Mr. Richard Kosbab.

Also, Mrs. Celeste Proulx, escorted by Mr. George Proulx; Mrs. Pat Smith, escorted by Mr. Larry J. Smith, Jr.; Mrs. Mary Kay Dean, escorted by Mr. Immond Dean; Mrs. Becky Godwin, escorted by Mr. Tommy Godwin; Mrs. Donna Holland, escorted by Mr. Floyd Holland; Mrs. Sue Mayfield, escorted by Mr. Jim Mayfield; and Mrs. Madeline Prendergast, escorted by Mr. Roy Neeley.

Carnival XLVIII, 1981, Mr. Thomas Kenmore, and Mrs. Wendy Kosbab.

Mrs. Kenmore wore a white chiffon gown. Her Royal Highness, Queen of Carnival XLVIII, 1981, Ms. Martha Smith entered escorted by Mr. Sonny Wolfe, executive director. She was attired in a formal sleeveless gown fashioned with rounded neckline. A-line styling highlighted with sparkling jeweled floral designs. Her flowing train designed in vibrant colors was encrusted with sequins and jewels.

Pages to the king and queen were Misses Jennifer Lee Smith, Anna Marie Smith and Master Charles Oliver. Pages to the Grand Duke and Duchess were Miss Rhonda Cummings and Master Paul Chiniche.

Mr. Jay Heitzmann and his band provided music for this gala occasion.

Following the introduction of the Royal Court, a festive program of song and dance was provided by the royal entertainers.

Carnival Association President Mr. Victor Frankiewicz Sr. introduced the Grand Duke and Duchess of Forestry group urging honest pulpwood deals

Mississippi Forestry Association supports total honesty in all pulpwood purchasing and measuring practices, says association President T.W. Hickman Jr. of Brookhaven.

He also urges any charges of abuse be reported immediately to the State Department of Agriculture and Commerce for investigation.

Hickman points out existing state laws give the Weights and Measures Division of the department responsibility for enforcing all weights and measures laws of the state.

"These apply to many products, including soybeans, cotton and pulpwood, among others," the association president notes.

"If abuses in measuring pulpwood are occurring, or have occurred, there is no reason to wait for legislation creating a new agency," says Hickman.

He urges people making such charges to report immediately to the Agriculture department for proper resolution.

Citing unfairness of non-specific charges against a segment of the timber industry, Hickman states, "This only encourages distrust among woodcutters, wood buyers and landowners."

Hickman says there has been recent public comment stating pulpwood cutters are unprotected in the measurement and sale of pulpwood, he feels it appropriate to cite specific code sections which do provide such protection.

Mississippi's weights and measures law is contained in Title 75, Chapter 27, Mississippi Code 1972 Annotated, Hickman reports.

He says an extensive educational program in proper methods of scaling and measuring pulpwood by the association will finance and organize training sessions in every county in Mississippi.

where pulpwood is a significant factor in the local economy.

Much of the current problems may result from communications problems between timber harvesters and wood buyers," Hickman notes.

"We sincerely feel that a good bit of the present problem exists because people who sell timber and people who buy timber in some cases do not possess enough expertise in the measurement of wood," he states.

"Our program will be designed not only for woodcutters and wood dealers but also for landowners who are interested in learning how to scale or measure wood. We feel that this educational program will be a significant step toward assuring landowners, timber harvesters, and wood buyers that they are being treated fairly in the measurement and purchase of their wood product," Hickman explains.

Hickman summarizes the position of the association by saying it supports honest and fair dealing in all transactions related to the harvesting, buying and selling of forest products in Mississippi.

Hickman adds the association is willing to support legislation appropriating additional funds to the Agriculture department if needed for enforcement of the weights and measures law.

State nabs Memphis real estate broker

A Memphis, Tenn. man recently pled guilty to operating as a real estate broker without a license after he was arrested when he attempted to sell a house and 10 acres valued at $220,000, to a real estate investigator posing as a prospective buyer, says J. Daniel Schroeder, administrator of the Mississippi Real Estate Commission.

"Ron W. Smith, 24, received a 90-day suspended jail sentence and a $500 fine from DeSoto County Justice Court Judge Billy Baldwin," Schroeder reports.

Toastmasters convene at Gulfport

A regular meeting of the newly-formed Lectern and Gavel Toastmasters Club was conducted recently at Payline Products Distribution Co., a subsidiary of International Harvester on Lorraine Road in Gulfport.

Toastmaster for the evening was Art Holzweissig, a guest from the Speakeasy Club, a group of speakers from the area.

Schroeder said the action came after the commission received reports from licensed Mississippi real estate brokers that Tennessee real estate agents were coming across the state line and operating without complying with Mississippi law.

Schroeder also praised local law enforcement officials saying that DeSoto County Sheriff Denver Sowell and County Chief Investigator Jerry Stewart provided invaluable assistance during the investigation and arrest.

moderated by Kes Maciulaitis and featured speaker was Shirley Haag.

"The club is a singles-only organization and meets the first and third Monday of each month at 7 p.m.," the spokesman adds.

Anyone interested in membership is urged to attend a meeting as a guest or to write P.O. Box 3501, Gulfport, Miss. 39501, for further information.

L.P. Gas Water Heaters May Be Dangerous

Thermostats manufactured by the White-Rodgers Division of Emerson Electric Company and used on liquid propane (L.P.) gas water heaters are being replaced, because under certain conditions they may lead to explosion and serious injury.

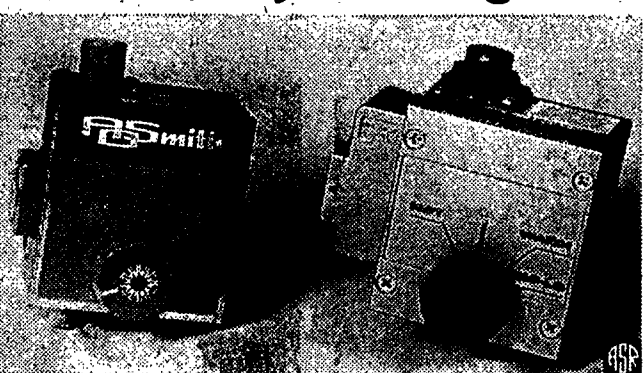

The replacement involves thermostats which were manufactured by White-Rodgers between 1961 and 1980 and sold to A.O. Smith Corporation and several other water heater manufacturers for installation on more than 600,000 L.P. gas water heaters used primarily by rural homeowners.

Natural gas fueled water heaters are not involved in the recall, and no replacement of natural gas thermostats is planned or necessary.

Physical damage to the thermostat's gas control knob could cause the safety valve to stick in the "open" position, allowing L.P. gas to escape. Since L.P. gas is heavier than air, it tends to accumulate near the floor and may explode when exposed to an open flame, electric spark or other ignition source. Since 1968, L.P. gas water heaters with White-Rodgers thermostats have been involved in 23 explosions involving five deaths and sixteen serious injuries. In most of these cases the gas knob of the thermostat apparently had been damaged or abused, allowing gas to escape.

If consumers believe their L.P. gas water heater has been purchased since 1961, they should call the White-Rodgers hotline toll-free, 1-800-325-9589 (or collect from Missouri, Alaska and Hawaii at 314-631-9321) to arrange for replacement with a new modified thermostat free of charge.

The new thermostats will be installed by a qualified service representative working under an arrangement with White-Rodgers. Each of the replacement thermostats will bear a sticker warning consumers against forcing, hitting or damaging the thermostat's gas control knob. Under no circumstances should someone own an L.P. gas water heater equipped with one of these thermostats attempt to relight the pilot flame if it has gone out. Instead, they should call their gas supplier or plumber immediately.

The thermostat currently being manufactured by White-Rodgers contains a knob and collar which are much more resistant to damage during the life of the product than earlier models. The new thermostat also contains a gas inlet filter which White-Rodgers believes will prevent contaminants from interfering with proper operation of the thermostat's safety valve.

The program will include L.P. gas water heaters, manufactured by A. O. Smith under such brand names as A. O. Smith, American Standard, Continental, Glasco, Kee, National, Minnegasco, NORGAS and Homart, along with water heaters manufactured by other companies.

The program is part of a settlement with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission which also requires White-Rodgers to pay a fine of $420,000 and mail safety alert notices to the estimated 15 million U.S. households that use L.P. gas.

The agreement with the Commission states that the replacement program is being conducted, because "it is in the public interest to minimize any possibility of injury due to abuse or any other cause from White-Rodgers thermostats used in L.P. gas water heaters."

The Commission also notes that the companies involved do not admit any violation of the Consumer Product Safety Act and in agreeing to pay the settlement claim, White-Rodgers states that it did not violate the reporting requirement of the Act.

PARVOVIRUS: A CONTINUING DANGER FOR DOGS

Across the country, veterinarians are explaining a new disease to dog owners - "parvovirus infection."

Parvovirus is an extremely hardy organism that was first identified in 1978 to be the cause of a new contagious canine disease. It was initially seen in a few show dogs, and then quickly spread across the United States, Canada, Europe, and even to Australia. The disease causes a severe diarrhea, accompanied by fever and vomiting, and can also result in heart failure in puppies.

The virus spreads by direct and indirect contact. An infected dog can transfer the virus organisms directly to a healthy animal by physical contact. Or a healthy pet can become infected indirectly, by the virus in fecal material, on feed or water bowls, or in kennels that housed sick animals.

Almost all dogs are susceptible to parvovirus infection, but not all will become ill. Pets that are stressed by parasites, poor nutrition, or age will sicken much more quickly than pets in good condition.

The most common victim of a parvo infection is the young puppy. Although they may be healthy, young animals experience a great deal of stress. Their bodies are growing rapidly, their digestive systems must adjust to new foods, and they spend a great deal of energy in daily play. All these factors make puppies vulnerable to infection.

Often pet owners don't know that puppies are infected with parvovirus until shortly after the pet collapses. The only warning of cardiac failure may be the puppy's refusal to eat and the erratic breathing and whimpering that accompany the internal heart damage.

Parvovirus can also cause an entirely different set of symptoms that resemble the warning signals of canine distemper. The dog seems depressed and loses its appetite. Then a fever develops, and the dog begins to vomit. Finally, diarrhea begins, and the pet rapidly dehydrates. The strain on the intestinal system may also encourage other bacterial infections to develop.

It is extremely hard to distinguish parvovirus infections from certain other canine diseases such as distemper. To be positive, your veterinarian probably will order certain laboratory tests to be performed on stool or blood samples.

In any case, there is little to be done except provide good nursing care. The dog will need fluids to replace those lost through diarrhea and vomiting, and possibly antibiotics to prevent other infections from developing. Dogs that do recover are usually immune to further parvo attacks.

Your veterinarian will tell you that vaccines that prevent canine parvovirus infections are still in the experimental stage. Those commercially available are prepared from a vaccine that is used primarily to protect cats against feline panleukopenia, a disease that is closely related to canine parvovirus.

These vaccines will protect your dog for short periods of time, three to six months.

Several companies and universities are working to produce parvovirus vaccines designed especially for dogs. These vaccines will offer protection for a year or more, and may be available sometime in 1981.

In the meantime, you can take certain steps to reduce the possibility that your pet will contract parvovirus. Try to reduce the pet's exposure to other dogs and areas contaminated with canine stools, as these may contain the virus.

Be aware that the greatest danger is present where large numbers of dogs gather - at dog shows, boarding kennels, or obedience trials. If you must be present at such gatherings, vaccinate with the currently available vaccines to reduce the risk.

If you visit dog shows or households with dogs, consider disinfecting your clothing and shoes with a dilute solution of a strong bleach and water (one part bleach to 30 parts water), to help kill any virus particles that may come home with you. Finally, try to keep your dog in good condition.

A healthy dog that is free from parasites, vaccinated against other diseases, and fed a balanced diet has the best chance to resist parvovirus attack.

Allain cites milk container losses

Mississippi Attorney General Bill Allain recently asked consumers to support efforts by the Mississippi Dairy Products Association to reduce theft of milk container cases.

"The dairy industry in Mississippi loses over $1 million a year due to the illegal taking of milk cases. This loss affects everyone because it results in higher consumer costs for milk, butter, cheese and other dairy products," Allain said.

The Mississippi association recently launched a statewide media campaign to increase public awareness of the costs to industry and consumers resulting from case theft.

Allain reports, "While these cases are very useful for storing various items, the public should be aware that they are the private property of the dairy products companies. Many people probably don't realize they are stealing when they take these from behind grocery stores."

Association executive director Ed Custer said the organization will sponsor 5-minute television programs, radio advertising and other media efforts.

PARKMAN BAND
The Mississippi State Penitentiary Band will present a concert March 17 at 7 p.m. in Fulton Chapel at The University of Mississippi.

The 13-member band is believed to be the only penitentiary band allowed to travel a wide range in the United States.

The group is co-ed and will play contemporary country music at the Ole Miss concert.

The band has recorded two albums and individual members have made single recordings.

Tickets are available through Beta Lambda Epsilon, the law enforcement honorary sponsoring the concert.

Money Talk

KID'S ALLOWANCES

As times get harder, some parents may be tempted to cut children's allowances out of the family budget along with other "extras" — if restaurant meals, vacations, and paperbacks must go, can ice cream, comic books, and tapes be justified?

Yes, say the experts; as long as it is financially possible, each child should be given a share of the family's income, and the freedom to decide how at least some of it should be spent.

By making small purchases, saving up for something more expensive, and once in a while spending money on a disappointing item, the child learns to live within his income.

"The only way to learn to manage money is to have some money of your own and the freedom to decide how to use it," says Elizabeth Wiegand, professor, N.Y. State College of Human Ecology, Cornell.

Just how should this learning experience be structured? Wiegand believes the allowance should not be tied to chores or good grades, and shouldn't be part of a discipline system.

Using an allowance to reward or punish may confuse love with money, and may encourage the child to think that money can buy affection or make up for an injury.

Children do household chores because they are members of the family, not to earn money. How many mothers do you know who are paid to prepare her family's meals?

An allowance should be based on the child's needs, and should be adjusted to meet rising prices as well as increasing expenses. 50 cents no longer buys a comic book and two double-dip ice cream cones; today a dollar isn't a fortune even to a six-year-old.

Parents should encourage a child to save part of his allowance toward some short-term goal; an older child may want to open a savings account.

A child can also be allowed to borrow small amounts against his allowance, although parents should not permit a debt so large that it keeps the child broke for a long period. If parents will help, a child can learn about savings and credit from an allowance.

An allowance may not, and should not be expected to, stretch to cover all expenses; parents may want to encourage a child to take on small jobs to supplement that income.

When they themselves pay the child for such work, however, it should be clearly outside the range of normal household chores and should meet reasonable standards of quality.

When financial problems force a family to cut spending, the child should be included in the discussion of changes and whether or not his allowance will be cut. A child needs to understand that some families make more than other families, and that every desire cannot be satisfied.

DWINDLING FOREST RESOURCES

The old observation, "you can't see the forest for the trees" is losing its punch. More and more you can't see the forests for the stumps, the pavement, the new shopping center.

Around the globe, one-half of the world's forest lands have disappeared since 1950 — a mere 30 years and less than a generation. Annually, forests covering an area approximately the size of Cuba disappear.

Until last year the problem was in other places far removed from deep Dixie, the timber producing part of this vast nation where the sun shines hot, the rains come slanting down with more volume than most parts of the country, and where lower land values and faster tree growth rates have given Mississippi an enviable record in timber production potential.

But beginning in 1980, timber consumption in Mississippi and the whole South was greater than its rate of growth. In this state in 1979 sawtimber was cut, 30 percent faster than it grew. In the central and southwest regions of the nation the deficit has reached 60 percent.

And this is happening in a state where our cash income from forests is second only to that of soybeans, and where one out of five jobs depend on the forests.

The threat far exceeds commercial effects, for each resident needs an estimated 78 trees to absorb carbon dioxide from the air in order for that one person to breathe. And 20 trees are required to offset the pollution of a car, driving 60 miles per day.

Trees are nature's air conditioners — moderating the daily climate by protecting us from extremes of wind, heat, cold, drought, erosion, and unhealthiness. Most forms of wildlife depend on trees for both food and shelter in one way or another.

Mississippi's new timber drain problem is likely to get worse before it gets better because an increase in demand for lumber is anticipated in the 1980's as a result of housing pressures.

According to Dr. Michael Jones, extension marketing specialist, as lumber and plywood prices increase, so will timber market prices.

"Interest rates appear to have peaked, and mortgage rates should come down this season," the specialist said, "and the reduction in the prime rate will give lumber dealers and wholesalers more incentive to increase inventory."

The increase in inventories may not occur until later in 1981. Dr. Jones indicates, but rising prices, normally spark demand so more timber will be cut. Having a strong impact on the problem of lagging supply is the fact that on private non-industrial lands, only 17 percent of the acres harvested are being replanted or reseeded, according to Glenn Jones of the Mississippi Forestry Association.

Reforestation would be spurred, Jones believes, by revision of federal tax laws to increase incentives, and by altering inheritance tax laws which today tend to liquidate forests after the death of owners in order for heirs to pay steep tax demands shortly after the death of the forest owner.

An analysis of present ownership of Mississippi forestlands shows that 75 percent of the state's timberland is owned by 133,000 people and only 12 percent of this land is actually producing timber.

Mississippi's current timber drain includes over 100,000 acres of timberland lost each year to clear cutting without being reseeded or replanted, according to state forester Dick Allen.

In view of the bright economic outlook for Mississippi's timber industry it would behoove all state landowners to bring any idle acres into a reforestation program as rapidly as possible.

THE UNBITTEN BULLET

No copious teetotalism on the austerity bullet yet! That's the observation of nearly 200 Mississippi farm leaders who spent three days in Washington last week talking with their congressmen and entertaining members and staffs of the U. S. Congress itself with a gala Gumbo cook-out last Tuesday evening in the Longworth Building cafeteria.

The Mississippians sat down to share breakfasts and lunches with their elected representatives, to discuss problems primarily related to farm income, and, of course, President Reagan's proposals to shift the tradewinds of commerce with an ensuing salubrious effect on the national economy. The end result is intended to run the rat of inflation up into a corner and stamp it to death — slowly, of course.

But slowness permeated the already thick Washington air. "Measured lip service was in the air, plus a certain relaxed feeling in timeliness in that so far not many folks really know just when and where to line up to bite the bullet. Some obviously would prefer to feel it and stroke it a bit first."

The American Farm Bureau Federation has gone on record suggesting that farmers of this nation will queue up, but they don't want to be alone in the line as they felt they were in the past embargo debates. They know bullet biting is more for statesmen than mere politicians who find an acridness if not bitterness that runs right down through their systems that sometimes causes convulsions in their constituency.

Senator John Stennis told the Mississippians that the President displayed a lot of courage in naming the sources of the budget cuts. He pointed out that without an austerity program the United States is headed toward its judgment day. He said he personally would not vote for a tax reduction without a dollar by dollar matching cut in budget expenditures.

As for a timetable, for austerity, Stennis predicted that under favorable conditions of acceptance and implementation it would take three or four years as a gradual program. Yet, if we stick with it, he said, we can get back on track in three years.

At a Wednesday breakfast in the historic Senate Caucus Room of the Russell Senate Office Building, Senator Thad Cochran reported, "I will be generally supportive to reduce inflation," a statement that could be taken as bullet-biting, cafeteria-style. He cannot believe he can eat the whole thing. He expressed optimism that such actions as cutting federal spending, bringing about regulatory and tax reforms, would go a long way toward restoring health and confidence in government so that interests rates and inflation would go down. He pointed out that federal spending had tripled in the past ten years.

During question and answer periods farmers expressed some of their major concerns. Both senators were reminded that farmers were hurt by the grain embargoes. Both senators responded that they were advocates of free trade. Stennis said it was a debatable question as to who was paying for the most recent embargo, implying that the sting to agriculture has been underplayed. Cochran said any embargo, if used as a tool in foreign policy, should be across the board involving all of American business overseas.

Concerning tax reform, Cochran said current estate tax laws do not really raise much money for the federal government and no longer are in tune with their original intent and should be changed. The law was never meant, he said, to cause the liquidation of farms by heirs unable to pay the taxes otherwise.

Cochran said the farm bill will be up for consideration during March and could be either a new four-year measure or an extension for another year of the present bill.

County Agent's Notes

by John Smith

GASOLINE FIRES

Fuels like gasoline used extensively on the farm often are the culprits in an estimated 2.5 million fires which destroy $250 million worth of farm property each year nationwide.

Gasoline is especially dangerous because it is predictable, so much so that there is a tendency for us to take it for granted. When handling gasoline or any other flammable material, you need to be alert, know the properties of gasoline and be aware of every possible source of ignition.

Gasoline becomes a vapor at temperatures down to 50 degrees. These vapors are much heavier than air and settle invisibly to the floor. They can travel unnoticed 200 feet or more to an ignition source and cause a flashback to the liquid.

The explosive volume of gasoline fumes is more than 15,000 times the original liquid volume. Just one quart of gasoline vaporized and mixed with the right amount of air can produce the same explosive force as 15 pounds of dynamite. Most of us can smell gasoline vapor before it reaches the concentration needed for ignition. But don't depend on your nose to tell you how close the concentration is to the danger level. At the first smell of vapors, check the source, control all ignition sources and ventilate the area.

Following safety rules when handling gasoline and other petroleum products can stop needless losses from fire. Read and follow instructions on container labels.

HOUSEPLANTS If your houseplants begin to get the blues and look sickly about this time of year, try these suggestions to put some life back into them.

Increase the humidity around the plants by grouping them or placing them on moist pebbles or sand. Misting the plants frequently also will increase the humidity of the air among them.

If you have an extra room that isn't being used, cut the heat down to 55 or 65 degrees and increase the humidity by placing a pan of water in the room.

If the plants aren't getting enough light, move them to a window. Or, consider getting a special fluorescent light designed for plant culture.

Stories conflict on origin of Pass Christian name

Editor's Note: The following synopses of Charles Dyer's descriptions of Pass Christian in the late 19th Century published in 'Along The Gulf' was delivered by Mrs. Joe Pilet of Bay St. Louis in a recent address before the Harrison County Historical Society. Illustrations are from Dyer's book.

The Catholic Church at the Pass

By JOE PILET

A few days ago I walked into the Bay St. Louis Post Office and said to the postmaster, "I would like to sell you a copy of 'Along The Gulf.' It was written in 1894."

The postmaster then gave me a searching look and asked, "Did you write it?"

That book was written by Charles Dyer and it was dedicated to Colonel Charles Marshall who at that time was superintendent of the New Orleans and Mobile division of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad.

Dyer was very much impressed with Pass Christian. He spent four days discovering the many charms and attractions of the town, for use in maintenance and improvements of Trinity grounds.

Dyer gives a colorful account of Pass Christian as he found it in 1894. He describes the city as "the most popular summer and winter resort for wealthy society people of New Orleans."

He was impressed with the palatial residences along the water front, extending for six miles. "Many northern and western people of wealth have purchased residences at the Pass with the idea of having a permanent winter home in this delightful garden spot."

He gives a glowing description of the "beautiful Ocean Drive" and makes mention of the luxuriant growth of trees, shrubs, flowers and tropical plants.

According to the author's account, a Swedish sailor named Christian discovered a pass leading from the Gulf of Mexico to the Mississippi Sound, this pass being near Cat Island.

Louis, Cincinnati, and other northern and western areas. Some of the buildings pictured in the Pass Christian section of 'Along The Gulf' include the Catholic Church, said to have a summer attendance of 800 persons and a winter attendance of about 400.

HON. JOHN H. LANG, Councilman.

There is also a picture of the Episcopal Church and the narrow wooden building that housed the public school.

The store of G.M. Rhodes is shown and the furniture store of F. Bielenberg.

Bielenberg was said to have carried an exceptionally fine line of furnishings. He also took contracts for all papering, painting, and kalsomining of houses.

The Bielenbergs also claim the distinction of owning the first furniture store to open in Gulfport.

Frederick William Bielenberg was the grandfather of Adele Bielenberg—a member of the Harrison County Historical Society.

In her home is a handsome china cabinet that came from the F. Bielenberg Furniture

J. M. DETUFF, Clerk of the Council.

The town was named in honor of this sailor. I have also read that 'Pass Christian' was named for Christian Ladnier and that Marianne Light was named for his brother.

Visitors arriving in Pass Christian had a choice of four hotels, including the Mexican Gulf which could accommodate 250 persons and provided excellent meals for $3 to $5 a day.

The small family style Lynne Castle Hotel suitable for 23 guests and adjoining the summer home of the Honorable Judge Lynne Watkins; The Magnolia Hotel with 40 guest rooms, and the Crescent Hotel consisting of two large antebellum type and recorded his findings in 15 of the 98 pages of 'Along The Gulf', with the Pass section illustrated in 49 pictures!

The Crescent Hotel, Showing Both Buildings.

Including photographs and copper etchings there are a total of 392 illustrations.

The book recently was reproduced on the offset press of the Dixie Press in Gulfport and the finest quality of antique paper was used.

It took a couple of months to reproduce the volume. Women of Trinity sponsored the project and all profits from sales have been earmarked houses' and several smaller buildings were the other three. Magnolia's prices were listed at $2 to $2.50 per day and included meat from Chicago and poultry, vegetables, etc. grown on the farm in connection with the hotel.

The Mexican Gulf Hotel was said to be "the finest hotel, architecturally, on the entire Gulf Coast."

It boasted all modern conveniences such as electric bells, gas, steam heat. It was the favorite resort hotel for visitors from Chicago, St.

Store. Adele also has an original copy of 'Along The Gulf'.

Her book is without blemish, whereas the reproduced copy has a blur on the last page devoted to Pass Christian.

The store of C. Courtenay is pictured, also the J. Howard Hanson Drug Store.

Mr. Hanson for many years had a monopoly on drug prescriptions. He was the step-grandfather of Dr. C.D. Taylor, who was awarded the laurel wreath for distinguished public service a few years ago.

Dr. Taylor's father owned and operated this drug store from 1931 through 1955.

The only business woman mentioned was Miss Marie Straub, owner of a Bakery Shop which she inherited from her late father.

The Bakery is pictured with horse-drawn delivery wagons at curb side and a number of small barefoot boys with huge bread baskets balanced upon their heads, ready to go at a fast trot to make short run deliveries, reaching customers with bread still hot from the ovens.

MRS. LOUISE J. BIDWELL

The only woman of prominence featured in the book is Mrs. Louise J. Bidwell, wealthy widow, sportsman and owner of a lovely home with the longest pier in the Pass.

Men of prominence pictured include the Hon. John H. Lang, seller of real estate, owner of a funeral home, a wood and coal yard, a livery stable, well stocked with fine horses—some "matched pairs", and a wide selection of buggies, surreys, as well as wagons and light two wheeled open carriages called gigs.

Mr. Lang, a versatile man, was a historian, owned extensive property and designed his own exceptionally fine home.

There is an interesting likeness of H. McIntosh shown. McIntosh was proprietor of "The Sazarc," a well stocked saloon featuring shelves loaded with wines, liquors, cordials.

Barrel goods were stored in the rear.

McIntosh's business was said to be "enormous."

With receding hairline, handlebar mustache, short beefy neck, and plump round face, he seemed the jovial type well suited for this business.

There is a picture of P. Curtis, an elderly merchant who came from Baltimore, served for a time as superintendent of education, and had a son to graduate from Christian Brothers College in Pass Christian.

N. Bohn is shown sporting a celluloid collar and precise bow tie. Bohn had a clothing and shoe store, was born in Prussia and learned and practiced shoe making in New Orleans prior to settling in the Pass.

The Pass was served by two doctors.

Shown side by side are the clean shaven young Dr. W. E. Walker, a doctor of dental surgery; and medical doctor A.R. Robertson.

Dr. Walker occupied almost the entire floor above the post office and Northrop's Store.

There is a picture of S.L. Taylor, town photographer, who set up studios on Davis Avenue opposite the Mexican Gulf Hotel and had many views for sale including such historical scenes as Fort Massachusetts and "the house of Jefferson Davis."

Christine de Metz Taylor, now living in Long Beach, married into that family and her son's name is Audley Taylor Jr.

He is the great-grandson of this pioneer settler.

The firm of Brandt and Kempf, merchants, is described somewhat in detail. These two enterprising young men originated the Artesian Well Company and controlled the Pass Christian Opera House.

Brandt served as county treasurer and Kempf was clerk of the council.

Both men owned considerable stock in the Beacon Newspaper, said to be the oldest newspaper in Harrison County.

The paper was established, according to Dyer, in 1880.

In 1929 this paper merged with the Pass Christian Tarpon, owned by Parnell McKay's father.

The paper then became The Tarpon Beacon.

McKay, the present owner-publisher of the Tarpon.

Beacon, tells me the paper was established in 1881 and on April 15 of this year a celebration is planned to mark the 100th anniversary.

During the 60th anniversary celebration a message of congratulations was received from Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States.

For 100 years the Tarpon Beacon has recorded the history of this area, and history in whatever way it may be executed is a great source of pleasure.

Betty Jane McCaughan, now living in Long Beach, tells me her mother was a Brandt, daughter of one of the original owners of the Beacon.

So in that manner 'Along The Gulf' records in an entertaining fashion the history of our fabulous Gulf Coast community as it was at the turn of the century. Buy it—read it—you'll like it. Save it—Keep it. It is a collector's item.

WE GLADLY ACCEPT FOOD STAMPS

150 WAYS TO SAVE! No-FRILLS

Our black & white label...begorra!
('Twill save you plenty o' green!)

With our No-Frills non-branded products, we're really lowerin' the boom on grocery prices! If you've got a hungry clan to feed, No-Frills PRODUCTS may be just the bar-r-r-gain you've been lookin' for.

These basic, nutritious foods and quality non-food items are priced to save you up to 50 per cent. We eliminate the colorful labels, stock only a limited variety, and choose standard grade rather than fancy or choice grade food products...then we pass the savings along to you.

If you're a thrifty shopper and saving money is your first consideration, consider No-Frills. Pure value in a plain black-and-white package... to save you some foldin' green!

Pure value in a plain package!
